TRIAL OF CRIPPEN FOR MURDER PROCEEDING IN LONDON TODAY

ETHEL LEENEV NOT CHARGED WITH MURDER—STATED CRIPPEN BOUGHT HYOSCINE LAST JANUARY—GREAT CROWD THRONGS THE BUILDING—INTEREST AT A HIGH PITCH.

(Canadian Associated Press.)
London, Sept. 6.—Hawley H. Crippen and Ethel Leenev appeared again in Bow Street Police Court today to answer to the charge of murder.
Apparently there was no diminution in public interest in the case, as an eager crowd assembled as early as 7 o'clock. When Miss Leenev arrived in a cab there was a great rush, which the police had great difficulty in stemming. Crippen arrived in the police van with special guards.
A Canadian justice of the peace named Dawson, was accommodated with a seat on the bench during the proceedings. Crippen had an alert air, but Miss Leenev hid her face behind a blue scarf.
Drop Murder Charge Against Girl
The prosecution announced that it had decided to drop the murder charge against Ethel Leenev.
Travers Humphrey, prosecuting counsel, in outlining Crippen's history, said that the good terms existing between the accused and his wife were more apparent than real. Crippen said that his wife gave way to fits of anger, and in consequence they decided on a separation. Her life was of no interest to him. She seemed to have become fond of another man. For three years Ethel Leenev had lived on very intimate terms with Crippen.
The Girl Was Jealous
Last January Ethel Leenev began to feel her position more acutely. She became very jealous and remarked that it was painful to see Crippen going about with his wife.
On the night of January 23rd Crippen invited Mr. and Mrs. Martinetti to take pot luck with him and his wife and have a game of cards. Martinetti became unwell next day, and Crippen called and asked after his health.
Last Time Wife Was Seen
That night was the last occasion on which Mrs. Crippen was seen alive. Next day Miss Mary of the "White Ladies" Guild, received a letter signed "Helle Elmore, Per Pro. H. C." announcing that she had been called away to America and resigning her position as treasurer of the committee of the "White Ladies" Guild.
Found Traces of Poison
Counsel said that Professor Hepper had found traces of hyoscine in the remains discovered in the cellar of the house in Hill Road, Crescent, amounting in all to 55-84 of a grain. Counsel outlined how the alleged hurried and unexplained departure of Helle Elmore, Crippen's wife, and her death in California, the wearing of Helle Elmore's jewelry by Miss Leenev, and other circumstances, led to the suspicion of Belle Elmore's friends. He also told of Inspector's interview with the woman at the beginning of July. Crippen stated that at that occasion that his wife was not so far as he knew. He had said she was, however, because he believed that she had gone away with another man and he wished to avoid questions. With the remains found in the cellar there were also discovered portions of pyxias corresponding with portions found in Crippen's apartment.

DATES OF BY-ELECTIONS

Premier May Announce Those for Macleod and Gleichen on His Return

Premier Sifton is expected to return to the city tonight. After leaving the tour party at Medicine Hat, the premier went to Banff to spend a couple of days with his family. On his return he may have something to announce in regard to the dates of the by-elections in Macleod and Gleichen.
Both parties have been preparing for the elections in these ridings for several weeks. The candidates having been nominated and in readiness to go to the polls. It is quite possible that the premier will be issuing a call for the elections towards the end of this month, while the session of the legislature may be opened shortly after.

MANY CASES FOR R.N.W.M.P. TODAY

Negro Escapes From Custody—Two Theft Charges and Complaint from N. Edmondton

Tomorrow at ten o'clock Clark Woods, the alleged murderer of Hector Murray, will be out on his preliminary trial at A.H. He is now confined at the R.N.W.M.P. barracks at Stettin.
A negro known as "Slim" escaped from the custody of the Mounted Police at Castor yesterday. The negro was serving time for a long time. They had been following the "Donner" dog and Poney Shows one of them being arrested at Castor and the other at Castor. While the officer on guard was looking for the dog, the negro Slim broke out of his cell and made good his escape. No trace has been found of him so far.
Charged with stealing three pairs of socks, two pairs of gloves and a fur cap, George Thompson, a black man, was sent down yesterday to the Fort until he comes up for trial at the district court at Wetaskiwin. The suit is properly belonged to Adam Kaiser of Wetaskiwin.

OLD AMMUNITION WAS DISCOVERED

It Was Issued in Year of Confederation—Found at Medicine Hat

Medicine Hat, Sept. 6.—While tearing down the old warehouse in the rear back of the hotel and the old store, a quantity of old ammunition was found in the new building which Harry Tweed is putting up. The ammunition was found in a box of which it is well known as Boxer ammunition, 557 Snider rifle. The pack was stamped 1864 and 1865, the year of Canada's confederation. The bullets were well preserved, considering their age and may be used in the future. A number of the men in the Snider gun, of which some few are still in existence in the city. These guns were issued in 1871, and were used by the police and also by the troops stationed here at the time of the rebellion in 1885.

WILL MEET TOMORROW

Striking Lathers and Contractors to Get Together—Settlement is Expected
A meeting will be held tomorrow evening between the executive of the "United Union and of the Lathing and Plastering Contractors Association of Edmonton in the hope of settling the strike. The union is to terminate the present strike. The men demand $3.00 per thousand instead of $2.50, the present rate. The strike affects only some twenty workmen and as it has not impeded building, it is not of a serious nature, and every effort is being made to terminate the difficulty. It is thought, which has been held up by the weather, can go on without any hindrance.

HOPELESS LOVER TRIED TO SUICIDE

Andrew Edmond, Young Man at Thirtieth Street, Took Poison—Is Now Improving

Andrew Edmond, a stone cutter, who tried to commit suicide yesterday by taking permanganate of potash, is much better this morning. It is likely that he will have to remain at the general hospital for some time. He had taken potash crystals, and was very little disappointed and was feeling better. He was sent to the hospital at his home at 740 Thirtieth street and looking through the window saw him lying on the floor. Dr. Duncan Smith was sent for, and on examination it was found that Edmond had taken potash crystals, and that he was in a very bad condition. He was taken to the general hospital, but in spite of everything being done that possibly could be, his mouth and throat are very badly burned. Major Cuthbert of the R.N.W.M.P. this morning said that he will be charged with the offence of attempted suicide as soon as he is out of the hospital.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.P.M.S. of the First Presbyterian Church will be held on Thursday of this week instead of Wednesday. This is because of the fact that the Training Home, will address the meeting.

POLICE ARRESTED FOUR DOPE FIENDS

Youths Are Charged With Vagrancy But Theft Charges Will Likely Be Laid

HAVE TO GIVE DRUGS

Prisoners Have to Be Dosed With Morphine and Cocaine While in the Cells

In the arrest of four men on Saturday night the local police believe they have rounded up the nucleus of a gang of crooks who have been operating systematically between this city and outside points. The men arrested gave their names as Hampton, Johnston, Williams and Pettapiece. The first three are being held as vagrants, while Pettapiece is being held as a receiver of stolen goods. Other charges, however, will be laid in a few days. The four appeared before the police magistrate this morning and were remanded until Thursday, so as to give the police time to make further enquiries.

DRIP, DRIP OF RAIN DAMPENED HOLIDAY

Labor Day Parade and Celebration Had to Be Called Off Indefinitely

THEY MAY BE HELD LATER

Other Places Fared Just As Badly As the Rain Was General

The drip, drip, of the rain was the first thing Edmonton heard yesterday morning on awaking and although everyone arose with the smile of optimism in the confidence that the clouds would clear, the day, as it developed, only brought fresh disappointments. The rain which had threatened to ruin the day, broke during the night continued steadily through the day. Consequently, most of the events scheduled for the celebration, a departure of the Trades and Labor Council waited on the mayor requesting him to make arrangements for a half holiday. A large number took the C. N. R. for Saskatchewan where the Presbyterian Sunday schools held their scheduled picnic under very adverse conditions. About five hundred left the station when the train pulled out at nine-thirty and all were in high spirits. A large number went along for duck shooting and a good collection of birds were brought back when the train returned in the evening.

HEAD OF THE VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES HERE

Miss M. A. MacKenzie Visiting Edmonton Branch—Will Speak Next Friday Evening

Miss M. A. MacKenzie, the head of the Victorian Order of Nurses, arrived at the King Edward on Saturday on her way back from the coast where she has been visiting the branches of the work. Miss MacKenzie spends on the road visiting each station in turn and inspecting the progress of the work.
In Edmonton, she said, it is progressing fairly well, although considering the short length of time since the Edmonton branch was started. She said that the work is better known there will be room for three or perhaps four branches, there being only one, Miss McCulloch, in the city at present.

RAIN AT WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Sept. 6.—A drenching rain day effectively doused all labor day celebrations and sports. The rain was not so much as yesterday and has continued steadily, even since, varied by occasional cloud bursts. It will be measured by inches for the 24 hours and it looks like continuing all night.

BASEBALL PITCHER IS HEIR TO HALF A MILLION DOLLARS

Will Have to Serve Not Likely that an Appeal Will be Entered by Edwin Clarke

Edwin J. Clarke, the local contractor, who was sentenced to one month at hard labor at Fort Saskatchewan, for assaulting Walter Spivey, on August 26th in a quarrel at the exhibition grounds has been taken to the Fort to begin his sentence. His counsel, E. B. Williams, is considering the entering of an appeal on the grounds that the sentence was out of proportion to the evidence submitted. It is hardly likely, however, that the appeal will be entered on account of the fact that nothing could be done until late this month, while Clarke will have nearly completed his time by then.

NEW COMPANY FORMED

Canadian Cruiser Niobe Was Re-commissioned for the New Service Today

London, Sept. 6.—Yesterday the Queen's Own Rifles had a busy day. They watched the regulars shooting service maneuvers, and on coming north he secured a place as a pitcher with the Regina team in the Western Canada League last year. He afterwards acted as umpire in the league. At the beginning of the present season he was attached to the Winnipeg team and endeavored to land a place as pitcher. The club was well supplied with leathers and Farrar was let out. He then came to Edmonton and easily made good with the baseball camp here. His family is with him in Watrous and they are receiving congratulations from their friends.

PERSECUTION FOR THIS LADY AVIATOR

Paris, Sept. 6.—A lady aviator, with the curious name of Mile. Abukawa, is in constant contention with the mayor of the town in which she lives, outside of which town, she flies. The mayor is a stickler for what he considers propriety in dress. What may be suitable to the air does not suit the earth. Every day Mile. Abukawa puts on a costume which she considers suitable for the occasion. She is not, however, in the least bit of a troublemaker. She is a very respectable city of Etampes, an official airport of the air, and takes a sum of money out against her for being imprudently clad.

Where is the Report of the Royal Commission?

NO ONE SEEMS TO KNOW—JUDGES ARE ALL OUT OF TOWN, SO IS PREMIER SIFTON AND SO IS THE LIEUT. GOVERNOR.

"This morning inquiries were made by a Capital reporter as to the precise location of the report of the commission on the Alberta and Great Waterways Railways, or, if it was not to report to be located, to find out when the report will be finished. Inquiries were first made from the judges who composed the commission, and it was found that Mr. Justice Scott is at Gull Lake, Judge Leck at Montreal, and Judge Harvey, holding court at Wetaskiwin.

It would be a natural conclusion to come to then, that the report was finished and had been handed to His Honor, Lieutenant Governor, but so inquiries were made at that quarter, where it was found that His Honor is in British Columbia and his secretary is out in a position to say whether they have the report or not. The Lieutenant-Governor could not say, as he is out of the city. Mr. Babbitt, the secretary, said the report is to be handed to the Lieutenant-Governor. Council. You will have to ask the government about it."

Accordingly the reporter turned his footsteps in the direction of the parliament buildings to find that the premier is away and no one knows anything about it.

LAURIER'S WESTERN TOUR NOW ENDED

Refused Petition of Manitoba Roman Catholics to Interfere in School Question

Winnipeg, Sept. 4.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier wound up his remarkable tour of Western Canada today in a characteristic fashion when he refused the petition of a representative Roman Catholic delegation to interfere in the Manitoba school question. He leaves at eight o'clock this morning for the Canadian Northern, and the only stop will be at Fort Frances, after which the party will speed to Ottawa direct.

NEW SCIENCE OF HAIR COLORING

Brussels.—M. Bertillon, of finger-print fame, is exhibiting in Brussels a sort of map of the hair of the human head, giving all shades of color.

It is ten years since M. Bertillon first spoke of his idea of helping to discover criminals by identifying their hair as well as finger prints, eyes, ears noses and other features.

There are several hundred different colors of hair, M. Bertillon declares, and all that is necessary is a proper classification. To say a man has fair hair is ridiculous. He has fair hair which may belong to any category from No. 1 to several hundreds.

M. Bertillon is hard at work now grading the various shades of hair. But he has already reached a point at which his graduated tables can be of immense service in identifying criminals. They will be used, of course, side by side with the "spoken portrait," in which ears and other features are split up in divisions.

M. Bertillon has sent his new tables out to his police colleagues as they have asked for them, but he says that his method is still far from perfect. He is a man whose work is never finished because he never believes in his own perfection.

He is at work, too, now on a table dealing with hair color that has dyed. Dyed hair is never for the identification of hair which the same color as the hair it tries to imitate, says M. Bertillon, and criminals who dye their hair are easier to identify than others, if proper care be taken. But the colors are quite easily distinguishable.

Old rose colors are fairly entrenched in the fashion scheme of the moment,

KING WHO WANTS A BRIDE

Manuel of Portugal, Although Young and Good-looking Seems Unable to Find a Queen.

In Portugal now, handsome as any royal young Adonis who has ever graced a throne, mopes King Manuel, unable to find a bride.

In the rest of Europe, pretty as any other batch of royal princesses who have ever graced an era—almost as pretty as if they were so many American heiresses—mope thirty-two loveless maidens.

Any one of them under ordinary conditions of politics, would be overjoyed to be the royal-wife of handsome young Manuel, Young Manuel, under the extraordinary conditions of Portuguese ineligibility which have developed in the royal marriage market, would be overjoyed to marry any one of them.

Between him and his chances for marriage lies the tragic shadow of the assassination of his father and grandfather. He is the most unfortunate member of European royalty, and not a princess, though all is believed to be willing to take a chance with him.

His case is quoted as being the most prominent one among all the varied considerations of diplomacy and statecraft that leave three dozen lovely princesses loveless.

It is, indeed, worth while being a princess, when your very royalty dooms you to old maidhood? The least likely, now, to marry is Princess Victoria of Enghand, sister of King George. Her health has for many years made her definitely ineligible for marriage with any prince or monarch whose rank was deemed worthy of hers. The alternative of being an old maid was the inevitable choice, and she has grown into it with such grace and gentle resignation as few women find in their disappointed hearts.

Among the youngest and most certain to be wedded is another Princess, Victoria—Victoria Louise, of Prussia, who is the Kaiser's only daughter. Her rank, the dominant position which her royal house holds in European affairs, and her unquestionable personal charm make it a thing assured that she will achieve some "great match," although who will be the other party to it is as greatly in doubt.

King Manuel wanted her, but his emphatic father, did not want Manuel. No firing squads or impromptu bombs for the Kaiser's daughter, who say she herself with the ready fancy of a girl who has just made her debut and with the docility the German parent can usually expect in a daughter, is much inclined to Austria's handsome young Archduke, Charles Francis Joseph, 21 years old, grandnephew of Emperor Francis Joseph and in line for ultimate succession to the imperial throne.

But Charles Francis Joseph is said to be enamored of dainty little Princess Elizabeth of Romania, the 15-year-old daughter of Czarina Sylvia, and these Austrian princes are very demons for getting the women at their hearts on. It may be, that in spite of the energetic will and exceptional influence of Kaiser Wilhelm, the match of his daughter and the young Archduke will never be accomplished; for all that the charming Cinderella of Romania need do is to be taken to Charles Francis, and the alliance of Germany and Austria couldn't keep him from her side. The question, no-body yet has solved is whether Cinderella, hidden there in Romania, will choose to be taken.

England has a princess, beautiful Princess of Connaught, who for some years has found herself in precisely the position of Romania's girl heiress—only worse. There is only an unmarried score of royalty who would not be so glad to win her for the world's courts, and as lovely as she is, pretty, Victoria reverts has it that the admirable Patricia has given her heart irrevocably to the acrobatic Marquis of Anstruther, whom she and the other royalties including her father, won't let her marry, although she is a princess, though all is believed to be willing to take a chance with him.

Among the countries afflicted with a surplus of unmarried princesses, Germany leads, not by any means because her girls are less attractive or less domestic than the others, for they are famously good housewives, and as pretty as any bunch of feminine royalty ever dare be. But Germany is pretty nearly as jammed full of royal girls as Canada is of "honorable" ones, which is going some, for kings at any stage of their existence; and pretty nearly all those royalities—their incomes assured for ever and ever—have proved themselves the sworn foes of race suicide. Result: Plenty of princesses, with a paucity of husbands.

Princess Ida of Reuss will compare favorably for beauty with any belle in Europe; and the daughter of Prince Frederick Leopold of Prussia, Victoria Margaret is thought to rival Princess Victoria Louise, the Kaiser's daughter in attractiveness, with the advantage of being heiress to a large fortune.

Karlo-Fedora, Princess of Saxony, is not remarkable for beauty, but she is esteemed talented both in music and poetry. The Grand Duchess of Luxembourg has two Grand Duchesses, Marie Adelaide and Charlotte, both of them fairly attractive, and the former the heiress apparent. Mecklenburg-Schwerin offers in the marriage market its Duchess, Marie Antoinette, who is just past womanhood, young maidenhood, with her age at 26, and believed to be ready to reward the princeling who awakens her with a wealth of all fection intense enough to compensate for any possible shortcomings. But when the claims of Coudis' favor are all reviewed there remains at least a score of royal princesses in Europe who appear doomed to celibacy.

So it may be that the romantic girl who longs for her fairy god-mother to transform her into a royal princess nowadays is making a mistake in her estimate of the happiness she would enjoy.

Princess Patricia, for one, would probably be willing to exchange with her.

English Women Lower than the Heavens

London.—"Though I have served forty years in the army and have seen every nation in the world worth looking at, I have never seen in any part of the world at any time or place women so broken down, so hopeless, as I have seen them in this district. Yet we talk about heathen races and savage countries, and call this God's England."

This outburst was made by Surgeon-General Exart during a speech at the opening of the extension of Claremont Mission Hall, Claremont, "I am no person," he continued, "I speak in the name of science. Motherhood is everything. The woman is supremely sacred. I see women everywhere drinking in your pot-houses. I never saw it in any lands as in England, and I have been all over the world. Where is the dignity of motherhood? The day will come when no woman will be supplied with drink. It is like selling the password on the battlefield."

"A hundred thousand cases of cruelty to children in this country last year! And in India I have seen the Buddha's children splendidly cared for, and writing of Japan I have called it 'the land of happy children.' But the day is coming when we shall be civilized."

Vinney—When you tried to eat a full meal on a lake excursion steamer you found you had bitten off more than you could chew, did you?

AT THE THEATRES

AT THE EMPIRE

After being closed for a week and a half the Empire Theatre will open again on Thursday, when William Sherwood will give a piano recital which will prove one of the greatest musical treats our city has yet enjoyed.

Of him the German critics say: "He can stand side by side with the greatest living pianists and no one really fond of music should fail to attend this concert."

Mr. Sherwood is a painter of musical ideas. He is a genius for tone color. His greatest charm lies in his interpretation. Not only does he interpret, he creates, and is especially effective in the compositions that he will play on his tour.

Miss Virginia Listemann, who will share the burden of the programme of Mr. Sherwood, is a young soprano who during the past few years has earned golden opinions all over the continent.

It is some years since we people in Edmonton have had the opportunity of hearing a great soprano, and should not fail to afford the concert givers our best support.

The plan of seats is now open at the Empire Theatre.

At the Lyceum

Sherman's musical Comedy Company entered the first hall of their fifth week at the Lyceum last night and a record house erected the performance last evening.

The new skit "The Hindoo Doctor," is by far the best that has yet been produced and the audiences were kept in a happy frame of mind throughout the performance.

The chorus has a number of new song hits which were well received and each number was encored at the show several times last night.

Tom Brown is at his best this week and is making a lot of the sober ones burst out in a hearty laugh. If one is in need of a good tonic the Lyceum is a good place to go and get cured of the blues, the shows so far as anyone can see are good clean shows, devoid of anything suggestive or crude and should be attended both evening and afternoon by large crowds.

The continuing of the girls in the chorus is far in advance of anything Edmonton playgoers have seen and each week shows us a number of pretty designs and material such as we do not often see in a musical stock show.

Starland

Seldom has any one politician received such a sincere and unanimous reception from a great nation as was accorded to Sir Wilfrid on his triumphal tour in the west. People from the lonely solitude of the vast tracks of newly cultivated lands, flocked to the large centres, undergoing fatigue and expense to honor this most worthy statesman.

Thousands of dollars were spent on the erection of floral arches and artistic draperies. Each town visited presented a gay holiday appearance, and every form of welcome imaginable was resorted to in order to show the feeling of the people towards one whose whole career has been devoted to his country's good. In order to give us some idea of this recent tour motion pictures have been taken of the most interesting events. These were shown at Starland last night and will be billed for a final run tonight.

Additional Sport

FAKE MATCH IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, Sept. 6.—Winnipeg was stung again. A ten-round bout between George Gardiner and John Willie was the holiday bill for the fight fans and it was about the worst exhibition of the many sport ever seen in the city, and that is going some. Willie knew a little more about the game than Gardiner, who had claims to the heavyweight title, but he didn't know a great deal. Gardiner claimed to be the same Gardiner who fought Bob Fitzsimmons twenty rounds in 1902 and were photographs available it might be shown that the bout was a fake. Some people paid $2 for their seats.

KAUFMAN BEAT LANG

Philadelphia, Sept. 6.—Al Kaufman won the decision over Bill Lang, the Australian heavyweight in six rounds here tonight. In only one round did Lang show any advantage, the second, in which he fought back and pushed the Californian. From this round to the close of the fight Kaufman had advantage.

Hudson's Bay Co's Fall Displayof the New Fashions

Our Fall opening took place on Saturday last, and we displayed the latest word that fashion has spoken on the matter of dress for women, so we suggest a glance through our several departments as we know the display of goods shown will be interesting to you.

Hudson's Bay Co's Quality Furs

(Second floor.)

Stylish becomingness. Individuality and reliability desired by women of refined and exacting tastes are apparent in every fur garment in our immense stocks. Our best judgment at your disposal. We know skins and our fur fashions are authoritative. If you are undecided as to style or fur which will best meet your requirements in a coat or small furs—just tell us your needs and get the benefit of our knowledge gained by years of experience selecting skins and designing garments; this is part of our store service.

Dress Goods for Fall

Dry Goods Dept., Main Floor, 3rd St. entrance.

Our busy dry goods department is just overflowing with all the new things in silks, broadcloths, serges, chevots, trimmings, hosiery, gloves, Wool Wraps, Handbags, etc. The assortment is large in all lines and the goods are all fresh from the mills and factories waiting a visit from you. Probably in no other department in our store does the great difference between our prices and those of other stores stand out so plainly as here.

Men's Wear Dept

Main Floor, Jasper Entrance

Men's New Clothing for Fall—The more you know about the fine points of tailoring, materials and style, the greater will be your appreciation of the extraordinary values we offer for selection in our gathering of fall clothes for men. Taste and distinctive styles are shown in Hudson's Bay Clothes, and you take no chances.

(See our Jasper Window Display)

Woman's New Top Coats

(Second Floor.)

Little groups of them all about, each one exploiting some new style thought. One shows the beautiful new color effects fashion is bringing out in coats, another a charming new touch on the collar, a third the new lines about the hips or toward the bottom. Each is worth studying, and so smart and becoming have they proven that already we are reordering many models.

Fall Gowns, Tailored Suits and Skirts

(Second Floor.)

High grade walking skirts of fine tailor-made cloth of extra quality, mannish worsted and fancy woven texture, in solid colors and mixtures.

New Carpets, Blankets, Comforters, Lace Curtains and Draperies

(Second Floor.)

CARPETS

Don't buy anything but good carpets. Its like throwing your money away to put it into "cheap carpet." Its only a matter of a few weeks when this kind of carpet betrays its cheapness and you rue the day you bought it. We sell only the "good kind" at the price of the cheap kind.

All the latest arrivals are here waiting your inspection.

SALE OF

BANKRUPT STOCK
AT EDSON

BE IT KNOWN TO ALL MEN

That Charles Lyon, of Edmonton, has purchased, at a rate of 60 cents on the dollar, the entire Bankrupt Stock of Montreal's largest Men's Wear Supply house.

Mr. Lyon finds difficulty in financing this tremendous purchase, even at this low rate, as it involves thousands and thousands of dollars. We are therefore compelled to sell at sacrifice prices. And as no city in Canada can offer a market for such a tremendous stock, we are forced to ship it to many different towns and cities in Western Canada at prices below the cost of raw material.

ONLY THREE BIRDS
FASTER THAN MAN

Acropland's Tremendous Speed Excels That of Homer Pigeons—
Eagle and Swallow Quicker

Paris, Sept. 6.—The flying records of man-birds put into the shade most of the other kind. Only the eagle flies better time than the big fellows, while the pigeon is nearest, the man-bird's record of a hundred and ten kilometers per hour, one kilometer being five eighths of a mile. The swallow flies more than twice as fast as the eagle making 250 kilometers per hour, and the hawk is said to be much faster than the swallow.

Dublin, Sept. 6.—At one o'clock the other morning the police were called to the residence of a school teacher named Cecilia Mulhally at Clomurly, three miles from Roscommon, where they found a man who gave the name of Mike Kelly stuck in the kitchen chimney. As the police failed to get the man out with ropes they had to break a hole in the chimney and pull him out. He was in an exhausted condition.

Kelly said that he meant to commit a robbery to get money to go to England. He was brought before the magistrates and remanded.

PHOTOGRAPHER

SATAN SANDERSON

The sign of his law at first started her, for it was held captive of emotion, but it was an emotion of joy, not of pain. A letter fluttered in his grasp. He thrust it into her hands.

"Jessica," he exclaimed, "Hugh has paid it! He has sent the $5,000, interest and principal, to the bank to my account."

For a moment she stood transfixed. The talk she had mechanically heard leaped into significance, and her mind ran back to the hour when she had left the draft at the cabin. She caught the old man's hand and knelt by his chair, laughing and crying and sobbing. During these last few days the impulse to tell all that she had concealed had been almost irresistible. Now the barrier had fallen. The secret she had repressed so long came forth in a rush of sentences that left him mute and amazed.

"I told you," she broke down for very joy. "I looked at her with eyes unusually bright. 'Tell me everything,' she said. 'Everything, from the beginning!'"

"He was young and irresponsible, Jessica," said the old man. "Money always came so easily. He didn't realize what he was doing when he signed that draft. He has learned a lesson out in the world. It won't hurt his career in the end, for no one but you and I and one other knows it. Thank God! If his memory comes back."

"Oh, it will," she breathed. "It must! That day on the knob he only needed the cowl. When I told him who I am he will know me. He will remember it all. I am sure—sure! Will you let me bring him to you?" she added softly.

"Yes," he said, pressing her hand. "Tomorrow, I shall be stronger than he. She rose and lit the lamp, shading it from his eyes.

"Do you remember the will, Jessica," he asked her presently. "The will I drew the day he came back? You never knew, but I signed it—the night of your wedding. Harry Sanderson was right, my dear, wasn't he?"

"I wish now I hadn't signed it, Jessica," he added. "I must set it right! I must set it right!" He watched her with a smile on his face. "I will rest now," he said. And she adjusted the pillows and turned the lamp low. Crossing the room, she stepped through the long window onto the porch and stood leaning on the railing. The words of the Biblical narrative dashed through her mind: "And he arose and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off his father saw him and had compassion and ran and fell on his neck and kissed him." So Hugh's father would meet him now! Harry had labored, spurred by a fierce haste to make reparation. Till the last ounce of the rich "pocket" had been washed and the whole taken to the bank in the town no one had known of the find. It had repaid the forgery and left him a handful of dollars over—enough to take him far away from the only thing that made life worth the effort.

A gradual feeling of apprehension had come to Jessica—an impression of blankness and chill that affected her strangely. She stood still, frightened at the sudden sense of utter loneliness.

She caught up the lamp and, turning the wick, approached the bed. She put out her hand and touched the wanted one on the coverlet. Then a sobbing cry came from her lips. David Stires was gone. A crowning joy had golden his bitterness at the last moment, and he had gone away with his son's face in his heart and the smile of welcome on his lips.

Chapter 22

ARK was failing keen and cool, for frost was in the air, touching the fall foliage on the hills to crimson and amber and etching delicate frost tracery on the spidery framework of the long black railroad bridge that hung above "the hole." The warning light from a signal post threw a crimson splash on the ground. Its green pane cast a pallor on a bearded face turned out over the gloomy water.

"It was here," he said aloud. He stood a moment, his hands clinched. "The new life began here. Here, then, is where the old life ended!" From where he stood he could see blossoming the yellow lights of the little city, five miles away. He set his shoulders, resisted to the small dog that nosed near by and set off at a quick pace toward the road.

Once in the streets he turned up his coat collar and settled the brim of his felt hat more closely over his eyes. He crossed an open square and presently came to the gate of a Gothic chapel set well back from the street. Its great rose window was slight, for on this evening was to be held a memorial service for the old man whose money had built the pile, who had died a fortnight before in a distant sanatorium.

He turned at the sound of wheels, and the blur shocked itself apart to reveal a kindly face that looked at him for an instant framed in the window of a passing carriage. Inside the carriage Bishop Ludlow settled back, with a sigh. "Only a face on the pavement," he said to his wife, "but it reminded me somehow of Harry Sanderson."

"How strange it is," she said—the bishop had no secrets from his wife—"never a word or a sign, and everything in his study just as he left it. Can you do, John? It is four months ago now, and the parish needs a rector."

He did not reply for a moment. The question touched the trouble that was ever present in his mind.

"I know," he said at length. "I may have failed in my whole duty, but I haven't known how to tell David Stires, especially since we heard of his illness. I had written to him—the whole story. The ink was not dry on the paper when the letter came from Jessica telling us of his death."

Behind them as they talked, the man on the pavement was walking on feverishly, the dog following with a reluctant whine.

At last he came to a wide, dark lawn set thick with aspens clustering that that house had been a part of his life, and yet a tremor caught him as he read the name—Stires. The intuition that had bent his steps from the street, the old stirring of dead memory had brought him to his past at last. This house had been his home!

He started. A man in his shirt sleeves was standing by a half open side door regarding him narrowly. "Thinking of buying?" The query was good humoredly satiric. "Or may be just looking the old ranch over with a view to a shake-down?"

The trespasser smiled grimly. It was not the first time he had seen that weather-beaten face. "You have given up surgery as a profession, I see," he said.

"The other came nearer, looked at him in a puzzled way, then laughed. "It isn't the core we picked up on the railroad track," he said, "dog and all! I thought you were far down the coast, where it's warmer. Nothing much doing with you, eh?"

"Nothing much," answered the man he addressed. Others might recognize him as the black sheep, but this man set here could not. He knew him only as the dingy vagabond whose broken head he had banged in the box car. "I'm in better luck," went on the man in shirt sleeves. "I struck this about two months ago as gardener and now I'm a kind of a sort of a watchman. They gave me a bunk in the summer house there—he jerked his thumb backward over his shoulder.

"I know a game worth two of that for these cold nights. I'll show you. I can put you up for the night," he added, "if you like."

The wayfarer shook his head. "I must get away tonight, but I'm much obliged."

"Haven't done anything, have you?" asked his one time companion curiously. "You didn't guess that sort."

"I've done nothing," he said aloud. About a white house. He hesitated a moment, then walked slowly up the broad, weed grown garden path toward his porch. In the half light the massive silver door plate stood out clearly. He had known instinctively that that house had been a part of his life, and yet a tremor caught him as he read the name—Stires. The intuition that had bent his steps from the street, the old stirring of dead memory had brought him to his past at last. This house had been his home!

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY

A meeting of very great importance to all lovers of music, whether the inclination is towards instrumental or vocal work, was held on Wednesday evening in the studio of Vernon W. Barlow, Esq. As is well known to a great many musicians we have a Philharmonic Society in the city which was organized some time ago. The officers of this society have been hard at work for some time and have now made arrangements for a concert to be given in the near future.

The first rehearsal is to take place on Tuesday, September 20th, under the conductorship of Mr. Barlow. It is expected that the vocal section will number considerably over the two hundred and be supported by the musical section of about thirty pieces. All members will be tested as to their respective qualifications by a committee appointed for the purpose. Among the chief workers for this society are all the choir leaders of the city and several other leading musicians.

It is to be hoped that this society will meet with much success; as it deserves to do, and will be recalled only by the Alberta Musical Festival.

The object of this society is for the advancement and study of the better class of music and should have the support and patronage of the public who will, no doubt, appreciate the efforts of those in charge.

Any person wishing to join may obtain a subscription blank from one of their leaders or the Secretary, Office 224 Jasper Ave., East. Phone 10-8.

MOVING A CHURCH TOWER

Brussels, Sept. 6.—The remarkable feat of moving a church tower to permit of the church being enlarged is being accomplished at Bocholt, Belgium. The work is being done by two American engineers, and the vast undertaking occupies only eight workmen. New foundations have been prepared for the tower about 30 feet away. The tower, which dates from the fourteenth century, and is said to weigh 250 tons, is now being moved. Large crowds assemble each day to witness the singular spectacle.

"Youth is apt to be selfish," said Mrs. Mary E. Wilkins-Freeman, the novelist, at a Metuchen picnic.

"Woman in her youth," she went on, "is especially apt to be selfish. I'll never forget the story of the young man from Boston who stood in the corner of Boston Common in a downpour of torrential rain.

"As he stood there soaked to the skin, a little boy in a macintosh accosted him.

"Excuse me, sir," said the boy, "but are you the gentleman who is waiting for Miss Edicott?"

"Yes," the young man answered.

"Well," said the boy, "she said me to tell you she'd be here just as soon as it clears up."

Work Here Just Now

The weekly report of the Immigration Hall show 57 arrivals and 73 departures. Harvesters from the east are arriving in considerable numbers but are unable to get work on account of the weather. A number of English and Welsh are looking for work in the mines.

NOTHING TO SAY

Geo. P. Brophy who accompanied Mr. Malhot, the engineer in charge of the Goose Island dam, on a trip to inspect the dam, returned to town yesterday. The inspector had nothing to say whatever regarding the quality of the work accomplished or of the plans for the future in regard to the work.

The blessing of prayer is not a reward for telling the omniscient all about our neighbors

Jack! How is it that Mrs.
Brown can get a quiet horse and drive her lady friends and you cannot get one safe for us?
Well, my dear, Brown deals at Horne's Livery and you phone 2234 and order one. Oh, Jack,
What a dear.

METAL WORKERS' STRIKE SETTLED

The executive of the Sheet Metal Workers' Union held a joint meeting with the Master Sheet Metal Workers' Association of Edmonton on Friday evening and came to an agreement which terminated the former's strike. By the new contract which dates from September 2nd, 1910, until May 1st, 1911, the minimum wages are 44 cents per hour. The men returned to work on Saturday morning.

HOSPITAL BALL

The annual Hospital Ball will be held in the Hotel Cecil on Friday, September 23rd. Mr. C. H. Belanger has very kindly placed the entire ground floor of the hotel at the disposal of the Hospital Aid and the first dance held in the new caravan-ary should be a huge success. Supper will be served in the rotunda, while the large dining room will be given over to the dancers. Irving's orchestra will provide the music.

EUCHARISTIC CONFERENCE

Delegates From the Northland Making Long Trip to Attend Pioneers in missionary work, are the three delegates to the Eucharist Congress, who passed through Edmonton on Saturday on their way east from the far north. The delegates are Bishop Gabriel Breyer, vicar apostolic of the MacKenzie district, Rev. Father Lefebvre, procurator of the same district, and the Right Rev. Emile Grouard, vicar apostolic of Athabasca. They reached town on Saturday evening by the stage from the Athabasca Landing and were the guests of the Tenth street mission.

For years they have been in the northland ministering to the needs of the few white men and the Indians and it is their first visit to a city for many years.

For Them

It is a recognised and undisputed fact that the young people about to be married are looking for some gift from you. They are on the threshold of their lives and one little act of remembrance will go far to cheer them along and make you a life-long memory in their lives. Now, can you forego them this pleasure when wedding presents of excellent quality can be obtained for such a small remuneration? Remember that you are young ones and experienced the same joys they are now amidst. Just look at those suggestions below and DON'T FORGET THEM.
